

Four more years for George Bush

By Shaun Driscoll

At 10:48 Tuesday night, NBC projected George Bush as the new president-elect. The NBC network was the last to predict victory for the vice-president. A total of 270 electoral votes were needed for victory, and the returns from Maine, clinched the presidency for Bush, even before the polls on the West Coast had closed.

Bush won a landslide victory in the electoral college, 426-112. This followed a projected popular vote of 54 to 46 per cent in Bush's favor. The 112 electoral votes for Dukakis were more than George McGovern in 1972, and Walter Mondale in 1984 had achieved.

Dukakis won his home state of Massachusetts by thirteen points. However, this was not a trend repeated across the country, as Bush retained his strong leads in the South, Rocky Mountain West, and the Plains states.

States projected for Dukakis included: Rhode Island, New York, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Massachusetts. Other key states where the race was close included Pennsylvania and Illinois.

George Bush, with his victory, became the first sitting vice-president to be elected president since Martin van Buren, in 1836.

The state of Texas, home state of Bush and Lloyd Bentsen the democratic vice-presidential candidate, voted for Bush. While Dukakis won 42 per cent of the popular vote in Texas, only 15 per cent voted for him because of the presence of Bentsen on the ticket. Bentsen's failure to deliver Texas, and Sen. Sam Nunn's (D-Georgia) failure to deliver key southern states, cost Dukakis key electoral votes.

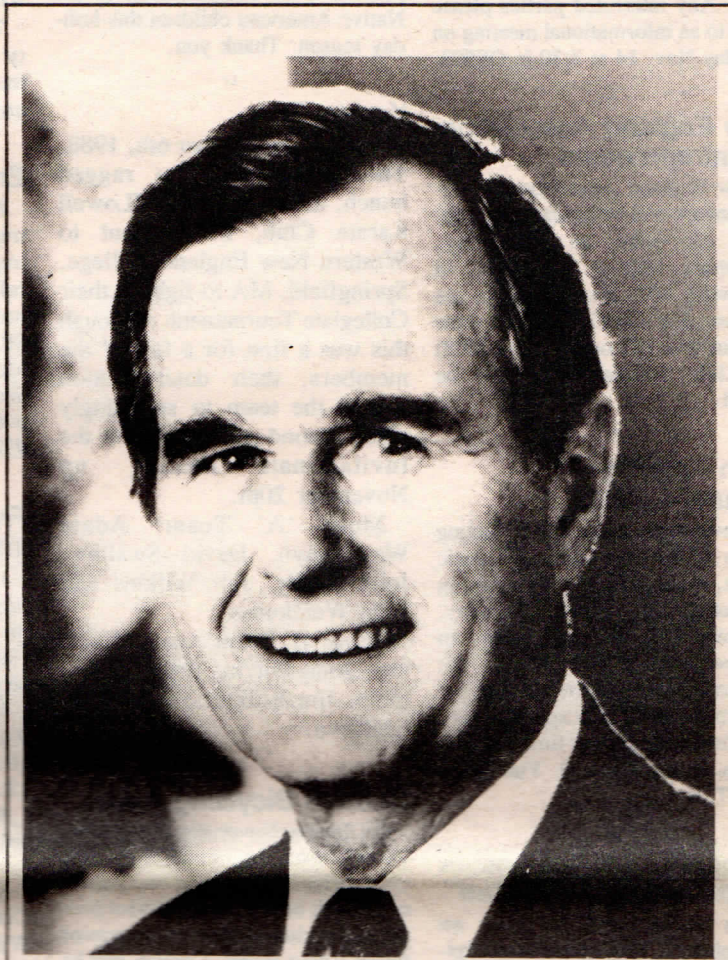

While the Republican Bush was winning the presidency, the Democratic Party was establishing control in both houses of Congress. There was a projected three seat swing to the Democrats in the Senate, while the House of Representatives retained the Democratic majority.

In Massachusetts, The 26 year veteran senator Edward M. Kennedy (D) defeated Joe Malone (R) by more than a two to one margin. The outcome was never in question, only the margin of victory was in doubt.

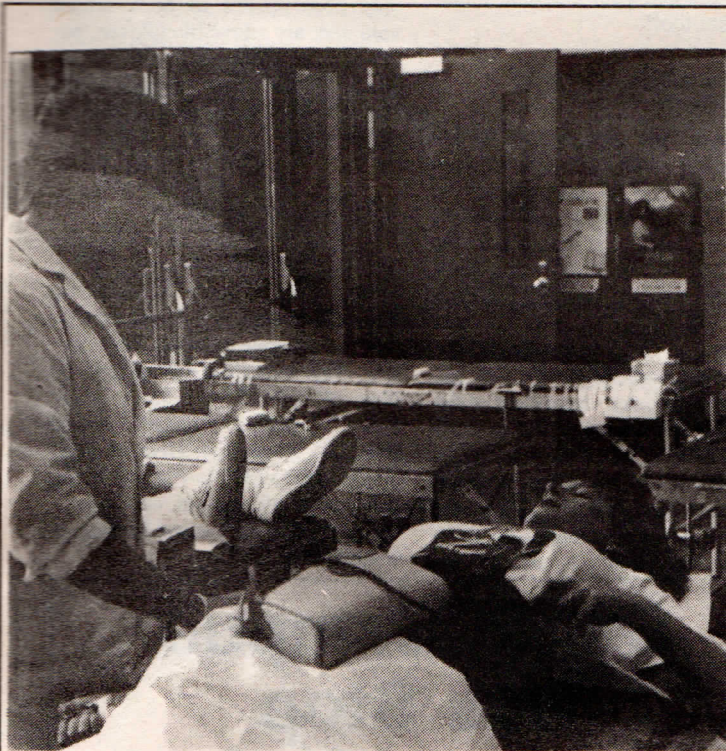

The four referendum questions on the Massachusetts ballot were all soundly defeated. Question 1 was the big loser by the margin of 83 to 17 against. Questions 3 and 4 each lost by the score of 71 to 29 against. Question 2 was the closest, as 41 percent of the people voted to repeal the prevailing wage law, compared to 59 against the repeal.

While George Bush won the election, the closeness of the popular vote, and the diversity of the ethnic minorities' votes, led Dr. Shelton Gawiser, the NBC polling consultant to say; "It is clear that there is no mandate in this election."

The nation has a new leader. George Bush has for the past eight years, been a part of the Reagan Administration, serving as the vice-president. The people have decided that Bush has the experience to lead the country. Time will tell if this assessment was a correct one. After eight years as the understudy to the most popular president ever, it's George Bush's turn to lead the country.

Blood donors

By Geoff Pahl

Recently, it was my privilege to speak with some people who were involved with donating blood at the Red Cross Center on Pawtucket Street, between the North and South campuses. This is what they had to say.

Paul, a 36-year-old Production Supervisor had given his A-positive blood about 13 times previously because "it was asked" and "to help out." He thought the blood drive that day should have been better equipped and staffed, because there was a long wait - and yet he did wait.

Carl is a 41-year-old drummer who has also parted with some of his O-positive blood 13 times. The reasons he gave for donating were more specific than most had. "They need fresh blood for transfusions and it's used for research into communicable diseases. It's a gift that lasts a lifetime. I believe that those who give blood are basically humanitarians - they enjoy helping."

Deborah, a 43 year old credit representative gave blood because "People need it; and if I needed it, I'd want people to give". It was her 3rd time donating blood. The reason Deborah first gave blood was that she had a relative who was ill and needed a transfusion. She wondered what might have happened if there had been no donor. Her employer, Colonial Gas, supports donations by giving their employees the needed time.

A distinguished looking 60-year-old General Manager by the name of Arnold called AIDS a "horror" akin to the Black Plague. "I really believe that those who have it should not endanger others."

He was by far the most impressive donor I spoke to, having shared his A-positive blood "about 20 times." He urges those who can to donate. Arnold spoke of "a need that HAD TO be filled. Giving blood never bothered me or my dad. He went. I went."

Going along with that theme, there was also a father-son pair of donors that day: Lee, 48, and Kevin, 19. Lee, who called himself a "Consultant Forester" had donated once before at a church blood drive simply "because I thought I should". It was apparent that he wasn't fond of the needles.

He was there that day because his son was going and he decided to come along. "So, are we going to come back tomorrow," joked Kevin. Kevin is an O-positive student who had given two times before. He originally gave at a Lowell High blood drive because he felt that he was morally obligated.

The only volunteer I spoke to that day was Aurea, a woman in her "80's" who had been invol-

NAOO toy drive

The Pine Ridge reservation in South Dakota is full of children praying for a special toy this Christmas. If you know of any child who has outgrown a doll or toy truck, etc, please donate it to the Native American Outreach Association Toy Drive. A box for donations is located in the Student Union Building Adult learner Center. Please, only those toys that are in good condition and easy to use would bring the most smiles this holiday season. The toy drive ends December 2 to allow enough time to ship the gifts to the reservation before Christmas. We appreciate your consideration of the Native American children this holiday season. Thank you.

Karate Club

Sunday, November 6th, 1988. The "Underdog," a ragged bunch, members of the ULowell Karate Club, headed out to Western New England College, Springfield, MA to fight in their Collegiate Tournament. Although this was a first for a few of the members, their determination helped the team to suprisingly place Second and qualify for the Invationals coming up November 20th.

Mens 'A' Team: Adam Wasylyshyn, David Swallow, John Nofle, Jim Wilkins and John Weidkunas.

Mens 'B' Team: Gary Milief-sky, Alan Potvin, Bryan DiAntonio, Jim Wilkins and Takashi Ishikawa.

ULowell Bicycling Assoc.

On Sunday November 13 at Noon, we will be having a Time Trial. This event helps to determine one's ability and will be used to categorize people in the club in order to determine future riding events. Cyclists will be timed for a distance of about 10 miles on a planned course. All students and faculty invited. Meet in front of Southwick Hall.

Interested in law school

On Monday, November 14, at 3:30 in Olsen Hall Room 310, a practicing attorney will speak and answer all questions regarding law school.

Her name is Andrea Saunders, and she is a former U. Lowell graduate. Ms. Saunders will explain the application process and other such things.

If you're considering law school, this is a great opportunity to learn what it's all about.

If you have any questions, contact the Pre-Law Society through Box 190 NSIC, or Dan through 169N. Sponsored by the Pre-Law Society.

GENERAL

CMS/60 credit rule reminder

Do not register for CMS upper division courses (300/400 level) unless you have completed 60 academic credits by the end of the current semester.

Your registration in these courses will be automatically cancelled if you violate this rule. No exceptions to this rule are permitted.

Attention physics students

Come to the movies at the Freshman Center (Southwick 319). The Mechanical Universe Series will be shown on Tuesday night 6:00 p.m.-6:30 p.m. and Thursday morning 11:30 a.m.-12:00 Noon.

A different videotape will be shown twice each week! Come learn with our tutors and your classmates and have fun too!!

Stress management workshop

Feeling the weight of 'mid-semester'? Come to the Stress Management Workshop, Thursday, Nov. 17 at 12:00-1:00 and again on Monday, Nov. 21 at 3:30-4:30. The workshop will be held in the South Campus Student Union Building room 335.

If you would like to sign up for these workshops, please drop by the Counseling Center - third floor of the SUB (South Campus) or give us a call at 452-5000 x2390. If this workshop interests you and you cannot make the scheduled time, please call us and perhaps we can arrange for you to receive individual assistance.

North Campus Residents

Residents of residential North (Bourgeois, Leitch, Fox) can let out a sigh of relief as a shiny new postal collection box was installed last week in front of Fox. This is the end of an era of having to walk over to North campus by the arches just to mail a letter. To this deed we owe our thanks to the Lowell post office for their prompt response and RHA for their efforts to get it installed. It will be well used.

Friends, Romans, Couch Potatoes

Lend me your ears! Finally, all these years of watching television for hours upon end every day will pay off! Tonight at 7:00 p.m. in the Fox Hall Rathskellar the popular T.V. trivia game Remote Control will be premiering. For an entire, fun-filled hour, contestants from each of the residence halls will be testing their knowledge of T.V. trivia facts and competing for the grand prize of a remote controlled color television. This game has it all! Sing along with Colin! The Laughter! Videos! And, of course, snack time! This is a must see! It was given two thumbs up by Larry and Liz! All are welcome! start your long weekend off right! An RHA sponsored event.

Volunteers needed

Have you ever thought of being a school volunteer in Lowell? If so, we need you! Dedicated members of the University of Lowell community are needed to work with Lowell's classroom teachers to enhance student achievement. School volunteers assist teachers in tutoring students in reading and writing, math and sciences, social studies, foreign languages and the creative arts. Volunteers only work with teachers who have requested a volunteer; they assist the teacher in ways the teacher specifies. Volunteers are not substitute teachers. It helps to have transportation but SVL tries to place volunteers in locations convenient to where they live, when possible. The only prerequisites to be a school volunteer are a love of children, patience and kindness. If you are interested please contact Angela Swift, Placement Office Southwick Hall or call at x3081.

Conflict resolution

It's not too late for Conflict Resolution, a workshop to help you learn: to communicate under pressure; to approach conflict in a non-adversarial way; to separate emotion from content. This workshop will be held on Nov. 10 and 17, 1-2 p.m., in the South Campus Student Union Building, Room 334. Give us a call at 452-5000 x2390 to sign up, if you want more information, or if you're interested but can't attend because of a scheduling conflict.

Cult Awareness Program

To be held on Tuesday November 15 at 7:30 p.m. in Concordia main lobby.

Special guests will be Father Paul Garrity, Pat Davidson and Art Brown.

Influence and slums...

The Board of Trustees are often referred to as being the most influential men and women in the area. Some of its members are prominent lawyers, corporate leaders and even a former U.S. Senator.

These men and women are the decision makers, the earth-movers, and unfortunately the blind members of the ULowell community.

I mean no disrespect to such a group of people who have only the university's best interests at heart. These people are hard-working and concerned about our college's future. They want ULowell to succeed.

But I don't think they see the problems facing college students in the Lowell area. If they do, then they're not sensitive to your problems.

Students who don't live in the residence halls and need to live near campus, are forced into high-priced, two or three room dumps.

These are grimmy places where students look at their textbooks. These are places where half-bathrooms are typical and the tiny kitchens serve also as living rooms, studies, and dining rooms.

Landlords in the area pull in thousands of dollars each month from our students and give very little in return.

I'd like to see our trustees flex some muscles and get affordable housing off campus, but I seriously doubt it will happen since they are responsible for some housing problems on campus.

Two years ago, the trustees signed a lease agreement with realtor James Cooney for the Crescent and Bridge Street buildings.

These are student apartments that cost nearly $300 each month for 12 to 14 person apartments that have barely enough facilities for all those students.

These were buildings initially set for upperclassmen, but now 50% of its residents are freshmen.

These are buildings where students in three years will be paying for cramped living conditions, few programs (although no fault of the RAs), and inconvenience all for the small fee of $350-$375 per month according to someone close to the trustees.

There are new residence halls being built and many wonder why the trustees accepted the offer knowing that the cost was steep, it was very inconvenient, and that students would be getting only a high-priced bed. Political? I think so.

I'd like to see our 11 member Board of Trustees push for better housing off campus, but I can't see them doing that when they are part of the problem facing student housing.

Protect your car from theft

By Paula Haines

Here at ULowell, having cars broken into is a way of life. We are an urban campus, and this much could be expected. Lately, however, there have been several break-ins which have been widely publicized. Campus Police Chief Rowe explains that crimes of this nature are an "ongoing problem, and occur quite frequently." Unfortunately, this is no consolation to students who are victims of theft.

In some cases, cars are entered through smashed windows, and their contents are stolen, while in other cases, the car itself is the object of the crime. The Campus Police have made some arrests for these crimes, but the danger still exists.

During this past week one alleged thief was apprehended, at the cost of putting a Campus Police officer in the hospital. A student who discovered her car missing reported it stolen to the Campus Police. The description of the student's car was put out on the radio to all Campus Police patrols. One officer observed the described vehicle running in the Research Foundation parking lot, next to another car. In the second car, the officer reported seeing a man "acting suspiciously".

On seeing the officer, the suspect ran. The officer radioed for help, and then began to chase the suspect. The officer saw the suspect reaching for a knife, and tackled him. Additional officers from Fox and Eames reported to the scene, along with two members of the Student Escort service. As a result of this episode, the Campus Police officer was sent to the hospital, and the alleged thief was arrested.

This particular suspect, it was found, had been arrested one year ago for breaking into a car, and was wanted by the Massachusetts State Police. Right now, the suspect is in Cambridge awaiting trial; his bail is set at $5000.

In this particular case, the Campus Police were able to make an arrest, but many other crimes at ULowell go unsolved. In these cases, victims have no recourse against the offending criminals, who will probably continue to take advantage of any opportunity which arises to break into cars.

It is impossible to predict where or when a crime of this nature is going to occur. Along with the Campus Police, it is also the duty of the car's owner to make their property as secure as possible. Although there is no parking lot on campus which is free from break-ins, and there is no special time of day during which most cars are violated, there are some precautions that you can take to lessen your risk when parking at ULowell or anywhere else.

Cheif Rowe insists that the main factor which determines which cars will be broken into is simple carelessness. If a student is conscientious about locking up their car, most problems can be avoided. Since radar detectors and removable stereo systems are attractions for thieves, it is a good idea to lock these items in your glove compartment or trunk, or at least to keep them out of sight. It is also to your advantage to invest in a security system for your car. The Campus Police will provide any interested person with information about the various systems available on the market, including the Lojack system.

If it is at all possible, it is a good practice to park under the lights, or close to buildings. It only takes 30 seconds for someone to smash your windshield and take any object from your car.

Take precautions to keep your car safe.

Blood donors

ed with blood drives for two and a half years. "I know it makes me feel good, doing something for people. There's no age that can stop you."

That day 63 people presented themselves to give blood and 52 were able to do so. The Red Cross runs blood drives there on the first and third Wednesdays of each month, getting about 40 or 50 donations each of those days.

During the recent ULowell two-day blood drive, 179 donations were collected. If you were not among that kind group, and do not have a legitimate reason for not donating, please consider giving blood at the upcoming campus blood drives.

The North campus drive will be held from 10:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. in the Alumni Building's library lobby. The South campus drive will be held in the Student Union Building lobby, also from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Remember, your one blood donation may help three people.

It's a Student's Life

By Geoffrey Pahl

There is a little-known group of administrators, faculty, graduate and undergraduate students within the University called the Student Life Committee. It, and the Core Committee are two of the seven groups under the President's Council for Implementation. They are charged with developing programs in conjunction with the office of University Life to improve academic life outside of the classroom.

The work of the Student Life Committee is geared towards Phase Two of the University of Lowell's master plan, which is to unify the internal structures of the University and guarantee its long-range success, thereby creating a "University of Choice". Phase One was the merging of Lowell State College and Lowell Tech, which was completed with the accreditation of the Colleges of Business and Engineering in October.

The Student Life Committee's mission statement, an extension of their assignment, is to "facilitate the development of a total university culture that supports the personal and academic development of students." The approach is expressed to be student-centered, and emphasis is placed on the completeness of the enrichment of student life.

If you wish to find out more about what this committee has planned, you can check out the weighty 20-page summary of their plans available in both libraries upon request.

Graduate students should be aware of the committee's presentation to them on the 16th.

On Wednesday, November 30th in room 222 of the O'Leary Library on South Campus there will be a "meet the committee" session open only to undergraduate students. Judging from the reports of those permitted to visit one of the committee's meetings, we can be assured that their concerns are exclusively aimed at what's best for the University of Lowell and its students. These are good people to talk to, and they want your input.

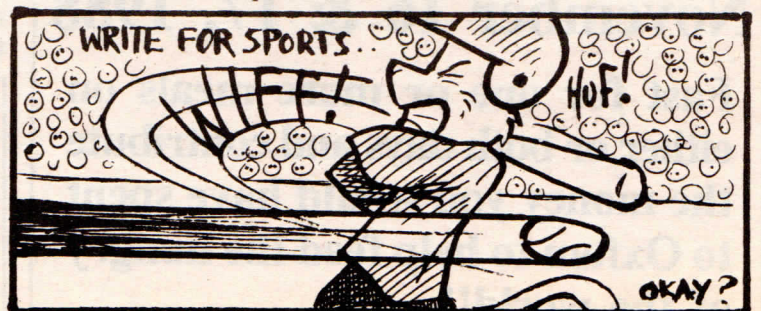

Do You Care?

There is a group of students here at the university that controls the use of the Student Union Buildings. They are SUBOD, the Student Union Board of Directors. Headed up by Senator Tom Winston, they have renovated much of the first six floors of Fox Hall and straightened out a great deal of the Club rooms. SUBOD currently is talking with the ARA food service about opening up a convenience store in the newly-renovated Fox Trap. If the deal comes through, the meal plan options are likely to change. If you want to have a say in these and other important Student Union matters, join SUBOD!

If you have concerns about the food you eat here at the university, where should you go? Who will be the voice of the students in these matters? Now there is a place to go.

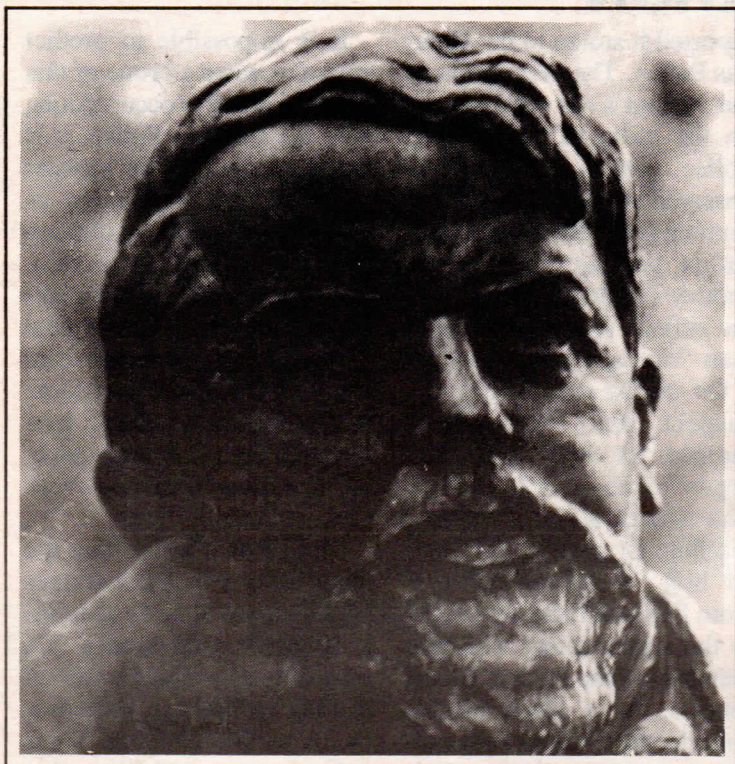

A new Student Government Committee is in the works. It will be the Student Food Advisory Board.

For further information about these committees and possible appointment to them, go to a SUBOD meeting. Meetings are held every other Monday. The next will be November 14th at 4:00 p.m. in Fox Hall, room 604.

Clubs

Friends, fathers, students — get some pasta

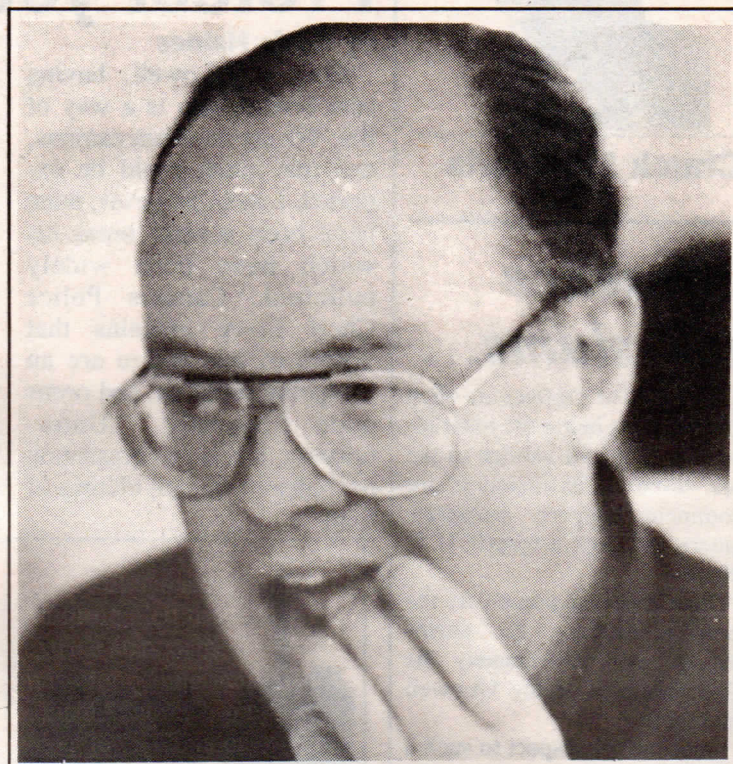

If I weren't a statue, I'd get some pasta.

You are invited on Wednesday, November 16 at 5:30 p.m. at the Catholic Center to our bi-weekly spaghetti supper. The spaghetti supper will be held on the eve of the annual Oxfam Fast, which will be held on Thursday, November 17th.

In light of the Oxfam Fast we will have a "special dessert". This treat will be provided by Rev. Imogene Stulken, Protestant Campus Minister. This dessert will surely enhance our menu of spaghetti and meat sauce, garlic bread, salad and beverages. Preparing the sauce for this dinner will again be our 'guest chef', a recent ULowell graduate.

Because our dinners are becoming very popular we encourage you to call us and set aside a place for you and your friends. The Protestant Center will be serving ice cream sundaes following the Catholic Center Spaghetti Supper. Please contact, Fr. Paul or Pat at 454-0151.

Man, hurry up with the food, my finger doesn't taste so good.

Karate tourney

The Karate Club will be hosting a mini-tournament on November 16, at Mahoney Gym from 7-10pm. The divisions will be Men's Advanced Kumite (fighting), Men's Novice Kumite, Kata (forms), Women's Kumite, and Women's Individual Kata. U Lowell will be competing against MIT, Tufts, Fitchburg State, and U Mass Amherst. The tournament is open to spectators and admission is FREE. Volunteers from the club will be needed to set up for the tournament. Anyone interested in helping see Steve Stone.

The Karate Club sent a men's advanced kumite team into the New England Collegiate Karate Association Tournament where U Lowell qualified for the finals by placing second against such schools as West Point, Navy, St. Johns, and Western New England College. The club will be returning to the finals on November 20th. Wish us luck!

The club will be holding coffee and donut days on Wednesday 11/9, 11/23, and 11/30 outside Ball 214 from 6:30-11:30 am. We need volunteers to help out.

To qualify for a club jacket, you must have competed in tournament or been active in the club for at least two semesters. Any club member interested in purchasing a jacket should see Wendy for details.

Office hours are held in Fox 528 on Wednesday from 10-11 am, Thursday 12:30-1:30 pm, and Friday 9:30-10:30 am.

For more information about the Karate Club, write to box:172, stop by our office in Fox 528, or come to a workout on Monday or Wednesday nights at Mahoney Gym from 7-9 pm. As always, new members are welcome.

Common characteristics Adult children of alcoholics

- become isolated and afraid of people and authority.
- seek approval and lose their identity.
- either, become alcoholics, marry them or both, or find another compulsive personality to fill needs.
- overdeveloped sense of responsibility
- guilt feelings when standing up for rights.
- addicted to excitement.
- confuse love and pity, and tend to love people that they can "pity" and "rescue".
- suppress feelings about traumatic childhoods.
- judge themselves harshly and have poor self-images.
- dependent personalities.
- because alcoholism is a family disease, ACoA become para-alcoholics

Getting your car ready for winter

It's that time of the year again that all New England drivers look forward too. Getting up extra early so that we can scrape the ice off of the windshield which will soon turn into inches of snow. The temperatures have been getting lower as the nights pass. I would like to know how many of you have checked what temperature your engine coolant is protected too. If your engine coolant is primarily water, instead of a mixture of water and antifreeze, and the temperature drops below 30° the water will freeze. Water, when it turns into ice has tremendous power. This frozen water can crack your engine block. This is a very costly to fix and easily avoidable. Read the instructions on the back of a gallon jug of antifreeze and protect your engine.

Another issue of winterizing your car is what should one use for tires. There are two types of tires, bias ply and radials. Bias ply tires are cheaper and better for trucks that carry a lot of wait.

Radials are far superior, they give you a better ride, have good to great road traction, and last for thousands of miles. Snow tires come in both bias ply and radial. When purchasing snow tires you must keep in mind what will the usual road surface look like. Radial snow tires will be sold as all season M&S. This stands for Mud and Snow. Bias ply snow tires should be a thing of the past. M&S all season radials will be able to get traction in three to four inches of snow without any problems. Unless you plan on driving during and right after a big snow storm there is no reason for buying strictly snow tires. One word of caution when placing radials of bias ply tires on your car. It is very crucial that both front of back tires are of the same type. That is that both front are radials or bias ply. It does not matter if the front are radials and the back are bias ply, as long as you do not mix them on the same side of the car.

Snow tires and all seasonal radials help you get traction but do very little to help you stop. Most accidents occur in the winter due to the fact that most people think they can stop sooner than they really can. So let's go out there and show New England weather were ready to fight fire with fire.

The ULSCC is going to have a rally on November 20 starting at the North campus parking lot. There will be further details in the next issue of the Connector. Club meetings are Tuesday nights in Fox 523 at 7:30. In the following weeks we plan on showing movies in the library on how to drive in the winter and on a lot of other topics. Hope to see you there.

Midnite Snaxx roxx the Rat

By Patricia Janice

I have to admit, when I went to see Midnite Snaxx on Friday night, I didn't have the highest expectations...I just went to see some friends perform and to have a good time, and because there wasn't an unfamiliar face in the crowd, I would assume that I wasn't the only person who felt that way.

I had arrived early to mingle...I knew everyone there, and we concert review

were all ready for a fun evening. Suddenly the lights went down...and who turned on the radio? It wasn't the radio, it was Midnite Snaxx warming up. They sounded great! I was shocked. How could four of my friends sound that good? Their musical talent was impressive.

The Snaxx kicked off their performance with "Rosanna" by Toto, and Dave Fournier's mastery of the keyboards was obvious. Midnite Snaxx went on to play a variety of old and new pop songs. Throughout the show, Peter Anton's guitar work was incredible, George Taylor's drumming was timely, and Mark Murphy's vocals shone through impressively.

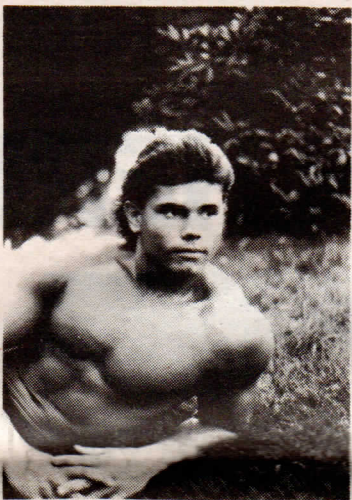

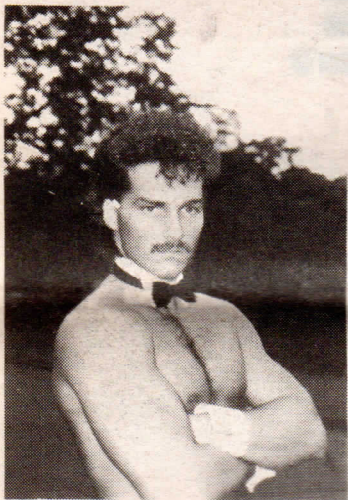

Except for a few minor discrepancies, the show was well executed. Mark Murphy forgot a word or two, but he covered himself effectively. During one point in the show, the volume for Anton's guitar and Fournier's keyboards was excruciatingly loud, but that too was soon fixed.

Overall, Midnite Snaxx put on a great show. And rumor has it that they might return to the Rat for a repeat performance! Go and see them...it'll be worth it.

Midnite Snaxx are: (clockwise L to R) Peter Anton, Dave Fournier, George Taylor, and Mark Murphy A.K.A. Buck Naked.

Movie of the week "Mystic Pizza"

Review by Glen Grimard

I wonder if I'm the only movie critic in the free world who reads other reviews before going to see a movie? The reason for deciding on a movie in this way is quite simply because I am not getting paid to see them as I review I want to enjoy the benefits of my money. So my reviews are on movies I have read are worth seeing.

I read the advanced reviews for Mystic Pizza and had wanted to go see it but I wasn't very hopeful. You see, Mystic Pizza isn't a sequel; it doesn't have any major stars, and it doesn't have an eye catching name (Halloween 4, Bat 21, A Fish Called Wanda). Therefore, based on similar criterion many theaters in this area wouldn't offer it as part of their selection. This movie might turn out to be noncommercial and the theater might take a loss. So, I was happy (surprised) that Showcase in Lawrence had booked it and made plans to go see it immediately.

Mystic Pizza is a restaurant where the three central characters in the movie work. Jo (Julia Roberts, Daisy (Lili Taylor), and Kat (Annabeth Gish) are best friends. Jo is wary of the stereotypical marriage (old, fat and ugly, with children) and has put off marrying Bill (Vincent Phillip D'Onofrio) her fiancée, who is a local fisherman. Daisy and Kat are sisters in a strict Catholic household. Daisy is the "Where did we go wrong?" sister who falls for Charlie (Adam Storke) Windsor II, a rich kid on holiday from law school. Finally, Kat (the saint) is a high school grad who is attending Yale, second semester. She takes a job sitting for a young architect (William R. Moses) whose wife is in England. Their relationship develops from this situation and the movie takes all of these relationships and brings them full circle by the end of the movie.

The movie takes place over a course of several months, beginning at the end of August and ending in November. The time period is short so you don't have to suspend belief to accept the "aging" characters. It was filmed in R.I. and Conn. and this comfortable setting has a lot to do with my liking the film.

The three central actresses all perform well. They make their characters believable. You've seen people like this before and they act in the same way. When you see these actresses on the screen you'd swear that they were best friends in reality. They react off of each other and appear to mesh well. I particularly enjoyed watching Gish. I thought that she most ably conveyed to the audience the emotions she was feeling.

The male leads are adequate except for Adam Storke whom I never found believable. In one scene involving the ruination of his car his character must first be angry and then make the incident into a joke. He only succeeds in the latter. His reaction never struck me as anything but bemusement. However, his performance doesn't detract from the appeal of the movie. Many times Taylor's presence saves him. You may remember Moses from a television series and he handles his chores well. D'Onofrio is also well cast in his role as the simple fisherman who knows what he wants.

The story has a lot of funny moments and can best be described as a romantic comedy. My favorite scene is when the three girls sing R-E-S-P-E-C-T. The laughter is a direct result of these very natural situations. It isn't strained at all. Credit for this should go to director Donald Petrie. He moves the camera and the actors well.

The soundtrack also helps make the movie enjoyable and it enhances many of the scenes. It changes for each character and you begin to expect hot salsa for Daisy and Charlie, light classical for Kat and Tim, and mixture of both for Jo and Bill. Unfortunately, the soundtrack is unavailable.

I have one small problem with the movie. Editing. The scenes are strung together well but every once in awhile there are noticeable inconsistencies. In one scene Charlie has his coat on and then two seconds later (not enough time to take it off) he no longer has it on. Also in the beginning of the movie sometimes the people speaking are mouthing different words than you're hearing. These are only small problems and they don't make the movie less watchable.

I look forward to seeing the future movies of Roberts, Taylor, and especially Gish. Their appeal, for me, is undeniable. This ensemble cast is very talented and this movie is very good. It's timeless (I never once looked at my watch). Grade A/B

Oxfam fast

The Oxfam Hunger Fast Day, planned for November 17th, is growing near and activities planned for the event are well underway. Still, involvement and support for Oxfam is necessary even before the date of the seventeenth. Please help the Oxfam Planning Committee to make this a successful and productive project here at ULowell by taking part in some of the activities.

Within the residence halls, students will be given the opportunity to "sign-up" to fast for a meal on the seventeenth. Sign-ups will be done through each floors resident advisors between the date of Monday the 7th through Friday the 11th. The list will be compiled and given to the ARA who have kindly agreed to donate a sum of money in relation to the amount of students fasting.

On Wednesday the 16th and Thursday the 17th, collection tables will be set up at central locations (mailrooms, cafeterias) on both the North and South campuses where students can give monetary donations directly to Oxfam America. Students who normally eat in the commuter cafes who decide to fast can donate to the collection what they might have spent on a meal. The hours for the collection tables will be 9-3 on South campus and 9:30-3:30, on North campus. Several locations throughout the campuses will have donation bottles available also. This is simply another chance to donate if you hadn't previously.

At the end of all of the collection events on the seventeenth will be a "wrap-up" hunger educational program. This event will take place in Fox room#301 at 5pm and will include a film and the wrapping up of Oxfam and it's results here at ULowell.

ULowell has involved itself in Oxfam for a few years and this is also the 15th year that Oxfam American has been in existence. We need your help to make this effort as successful as it has been in the past. Student organizations presently involved in Oxfam include the Student Government Association, the Campus Ministries, Masspurg, the Residence Hall Association, and the Resident Life staff.

IS ENROLLING IN ARMY ROTC DIFFERENT FROM ENLISTING?

Few times are you given the chance to try something for two years without obligation. Army ROTC is one of them.

Your freshman and sophomore years are an introduction into the life of an Army officer. You'll attend classes that are taught by full-time Army officers who'll train you to become a leader. Teach you ethics. Land navigation. Small unit tactics. And help you develop the initiative to take charge.

You don't have to make a commitment until your junior year. If you do decide to become an officer in the United States Army, you'll receive advanced training in the leadership skills it takes to succeed.

And when you graduate, you'll have earned an Army Lieutenant's gold bar as well as a college degree. With this competitive edge, you can increase your chances for success either in a civilian career while fulfilling your commitment in the U.S. Army Reserve or National Guard, or as a career officer in the active Army.

Army ROTC. You can try it out for two years, but if you stick with it, the payback can last a lifetime.

Seminar on war and peace

This seminar will be offered in spring 1989 by the Sociology Dept. It will enable students to do independent research papers on a social-science topic related to war and peace.

The seminar meets on Mondays at 1-3:30 p.m. on the South Campus.

Possible areas of research are: is the nuclear age different? how was the military developed as a institution? how do military technologies affect war and peace? how effective is nuclear deterrence? what is the impact of peace movements? what are the conditions of peace in troubled areas like Central America, the Middle East and Southern Africa? in what ways does military spending affect society and the economy? Students may work in groups if they wish.

PREREQUISITE: permission of the instructor, Dr. John MacDougall, Sociology Dept.: students who are at all interested MUST see him AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. Preference is given to students who have taken similar courses, such as Nuclear Weapons, Values & Society (48/59.214), Sociology of Non-Violence (48.250), Modern Africa (48.312), Sociology of the Middle East (48.316), International Relations (46.121), Caribbean Politics (46.371), or Defense & Disarmament (46.390); OR ALTERNATIVELY, to students who show strong interest and some familiarity with the basic concepts and issues. Students from ANY major can take this seminar.

The seminar counts towards a Sociology Major or Minor, and is required for students minoring in Peace & Conflict Studies. For other students, it counts as a free elective.

Course Instructor: Dr. John MacDougall, Sociology Dept., Coburn 404 (South), ext. 2475, 2629, or Falmouth 300 (North), ext. 2283. Office hours: Mon. 10-12, South; Wed. 1:30-12:30, North. Additional office hours during fall advising period: Wed. 10-11, South; Fri. 11:30-12:30, North.

Directions: For the following question, select the best answer choice provided.

1. Only if we know human nature can we know the nature of the true good for human beings. And only if we know the nature of the true good for human beings can we arrive at an idea of the truly just society. Thus, if we know human nature and the nature of the good for human beings, we can arrive at an idea of the truly just society.

Which of the following points out a potential flaw in the reasoning above?

- (A) What one human being thinks is good might well be something that another human being thinks is not good.
- (B) Many people have arrived at ideas of the just society, and all of them have been slightly different.
- (C) It is quite possible to know human nature without in any way being able to know what is the good for human beings.
- (D) Philosophers have argued for centuries over what specifically defines human nature, without coming to a general agreement.
- (E) Arriving at an idea of the just society may require more than knowledge of human nature and knowledge of the good for human beings.

The great minds of '89

It has been four years...or more since we entered the University of Lowell as vulnerable and easily impressed freshman. As each year passed we have grown out of that stigma and now we are the ones doing the impressing. We are the class that all others are looking at, to see how their senior year is going to be, and what they have to look forward to. Over the past four years I have not seen a class more unique than any other in recent memory. Many people within the University staff have commented that the Class of 1989 is the most enthusiastic class of any to travel down University Avenue. CLASS UNITY is the key to a successful senior year experience!!! With full-hearted spirit from all the senior student body our senior year will be your most memorable thought when the graduation hype subsides!!

In between your Wednesday night Pollard's and Derby Park flings and thursdays Molloy's and Navy Yards wild life extravaganzas, many senior activities are being planned!!!

The BRAIN TRUST of our class lies with our Senior Class Officers. The representatives of this years senior class are:

Dean James Donohoe, the senior class advisor, has been the inspirational and stronghold for our officers unity.

President Joe Kennedy is a Mechanical Engineering major. The man who makes Dukakis and Bush look like political candidates from Romper Room. He not only has that famous Kennedy name but also the height and stature of Mike Dukakis. Joe is also the Assistant Resident Director of Leitch Hall and has been our President for three years.

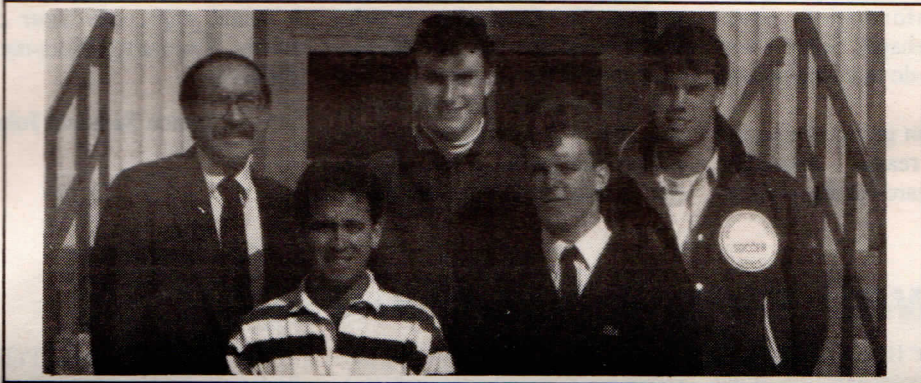

Vice-President Kevin Swindon

is an Industrial Technology major. Kevin has the potential to follow in the Gary Hart/Donna Rice political campaign scandal. Kevin is also a Resident Assistant for Fox Hall and Varsity Crew member. Kevin has been the incumbent V.P. for four years.

Secretary Jerry St. Peter is a Health Education Major. As a Senior Class Athletic Trainer, Jerry is known for his creative therapeutic training ability, both on and off the field, as well as university wide...Jerry is also President for the Health Education Club and Vice President of Athletic Trainers. Jerry has been incumbent secretary for two years.

Treasurer Peter Kushnieruk is a Finance Major. This Budget Balancer, budget controller, economic advisor, and penny pincher treasurer who handles our

Masspirg review

The University of Lowell chapter of MASSPIRG is busy again this semester, working in a number of different areas. Members have been working hard to register students to vote. During a voter registration day over 250 students on campus were registered to vote. Over the past week MASSPIRG organized two voter-education tables on both campuses. Information was available about many of the candidates as well as the four state referendum questions. The event was successful, with hundreds of students stopping by to ask questions, pick up literature, or just debate the issues.

Over the next few weeks members of MASSPIRG will be working to help curb the problem of hunger in the area, as the weather gets cold. Here on campus, MASSPIRG will be helping with the OXFAM America fast. Students can volunteer to skip one or more meals. The money saved, goes to help fight the problem of hunger. In addition, plans are in the works for MASSPIRG to co-sponsor a food canned drive with many of the dorms. Proceeds from this event will go to local shelters. On Thursday, November 17th students from the University of Lowell will join with students from over ten schools throughout Eastern Massachusetts in a hunger sleepout on the Boston Common. This symbolic event is the culmination of a National Student Hunger and Homelessness Week. Students not only will get to experience the problem first hand, but will hear from speakers on the ways to deal with the growing crisis.

MASSPIRG is also beginning an environmental survey to measure how students here at the University of Lowell rate various environmental problems. The results here at Lowell will be compiled with responses from thousands of students throughout the state. Following the questionnaire, MASSPIRG will sponsor an event to help educate the campus in those areas of the environment in which students are most concerned. If you would like to get involved in any of these projects, stop by the MASSPIRG office on the fifth floor of the Fox tower, or leave a message in box #93.

Life Goes On

By Margaret Smith

The election is (finally!) over. The matter of victory for Bush, defeat for Dukakis, is overshadowed by emphatic relief. Relief especially for us, the voters, (of course everyone at ULowell voted yesterday, right?) No more nasty, mud-chucking ads on TV. (In retrospect, Bush could have saved his campaign millions by running just one ad, of Willie Horton on a pier overlooking the harbor, saying the pledge of allegiance.)

But of course hindsight is 20/20, and it is time to look forward.

It's time to think about what George Bush, the Education President, will do for us students. Since he hasn't actually said much about what he actually will do, it is hard to speculate. But he has said he wants a "kinder, gentler" presidency—presumably kinder and gentler than the Reagan Administration, which isn't saying much. Talk to us, George. Tell us what we can expect from you—more money for grants? No, of course you're not Santa Claus, but it's difficult to enjoy a good education without the ability to pay for it. At least tell us that, unlike Reagan, you will not try to abolish the cabinet position, or hire a lummock like William Bennet. Someone who thinks that America's colleges and public schools don't even deserve a federal budget hardly cuts it as Secretary of Education. Just a helpful tip.

Tell us, George, since most of us students work part time, about no new taxes. Does that mean us, too? Certainly pushing carts at Alexanders' doesn't qualify for capital gains, but if you feel that we can pay taxes, then you must have the same faith in the richest one per cent of the population.

Tell us that you want quality education for our colleges. By the way, that means learning other things besides the Pledge. It means colleges having enough money to keep good teachers and not having to chainsaw courses and course sections. Now, I realize that Yale probably never had those problems, at least not in your day, but if you're not sure what all this means, come visit a school still hurting from federal budget cuts. You know where Boston is; we're only about 30 miles northwest of there.

Tell us that you think every reasonably intelligent, hard working young man and woman in this country deserves a chance to go to college. No, Senator Kennedy was not the first person to say that. The fact is, not everyone's father was a Senator, and believe it or not, wealthy families do not necessarily produce all the nation's bright children. Tell us that the freshmen coming in next year will have financial aid, if they need it, to get through all four years.

Even if you do none of these things, please pick your Secretary of Education more carefully than you did the Vice President.

Actually, in these few days after the election, there is more a sense of relief, rather than doom, that the race is over. While it may be unwise to speak so soon, perhaps George Bush will act more favorably to college than did his predecessor—though it is hard to imagine anyone acting any worse. And even if Bush finally admit, either by word or deed, that he could really care less about education, remember: we survived the last eight years, we are strong enough to get through the next four.

Letters to the Editor:

Why is this majestic portrait here?

Has anyone seen the picture in the library of a beautiful nude African person? This picture is located in the library as you go up the stairs and is hanging on the left side of the wall over the ramp.

For a long time I have tried to voice my opinion of why I find this beautiful woman's picture offensive. I have tried to have the picture removed and contacted people who I thought would be able to help me but evidently I contacted the wrong people who are in authority. They were not interested in why I find this picture offensive unless I gave them pertinent information about myself beforehand. Since I was not willing to do that, the picture is still there.

So now, I'm going to express to you - the reader - about my feelings in regards to this picture.

Everytime I pass by this picture I want to remove her from the wall but this would only serve to reduce my own frustrations without getting my feelings across to others or for me to learn different viewpoints from others.

I feel I'm being exploited because it is a picture of a nude African who is a female. I do not understand why she is displayed in such an isolated place. If she must be displayed there why aren't there other pictures of all nationalities, males and females?

I have discussed this subject to others recently and I was amazed at the response I heard. One person, (a Caucasian female) commented she felt that the picture should not be there and had felt naked when she walked by. As she was commenting, she pulled her jacket closer around her. I don't think she was even aware of her bodily gesture. She said, "I had not spoken out about my reaction to this picture because I felt I was alone in my feeling, I was the one who was being too sensitive."

Please do not misunderstand me. I think the picture is beautiful. The artist has captured her pride and dignity but not her soul. In my opinion, she is exhibited in an inappropriate place.

If there are any readers who could express her/his feeling (agree or oppose) about this picture I would be grateful. Or if you have any information of the artist or reason why it is displayed there I would appreciate your comments. You may contact me box #5060-S.

ULowell meets the Pentagon

On October 16-19, 1988, I attended the Annual Meeting of the Association of the United States Army (AUSA) held at the Sheraton Hotel in Washington, D.C. This annual convention is sponsored each year and selected Army ROTC members are chosen to represent their schools from across the country. The spectacular event featured the most comprehensive exhibition of the latest industrial developments in the military field.

Exhibits were sponsored by representatives of almost every government contractor in the world. Displays included newly developed laser tracking equipment, various types of high technology weaponry, computerized training aids, vehicles, and missile launching devices.

In addition, our group attended a special luncheon and award ceremony hosted by the president of the AUSA, Mr. Robert G. Moorehead. Honored guest speakers included John O. Marsh, Jr., Secretary of the Army, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, USA, Ret., and Gen. Carl E. Vuono, Chief of Staff of the Army.

Our location offered an especially wonderful opportunity to experience the Washington, D.C. area. Sites like the Lincoln Memorial, Arlington Cemetery, and Vietnam memorial were not to be missed. As a Political Science major, I was intrigued by the Pentagon, White House and U.S. Capitol Building. Visiting the political center of our country was a great way to gain hands-on appreciation for my studies. The ULowell Army ROTC is an extension center of Fitchburg State College in Fitchburg, MA.

If anyone is interested in learning more about the Army ROTC program, you may contact our military advisor, CPT Archambault at 345-2151 or drop me a note in Mailbox #5650-South. We would be happy to answer any questions.

The Connector is the student newspaper of the University of Lowell. Published weekly during the school year, by and for the students of the University of Lowell and the University Community. The paper is typeset on an in-house Compugraphic MCS 100 Typesetting System and is printed at Charles River Publishing in Charlestown, MA

Safe drinks

Lemon strawberry punch: 3 cans (6 ounces) frozen lemonade concentrate, 1 package (10 ounces) frozen strawberries, thawed, 1 quart ginger ale, chilled. In a large punch bowl, prepare lemonade concentrate as directed on can; stir in strawberries (with syrup). Stir in ginger ale and, if you wish, add small scoops of strawberry ice cream or ice cubes. 28 servings (about 1/2 cup each).

Appalachia

The Catholic Center will once again sponsor a semester break work trip to Appalachia. The Appalachian Region of our country begins in Northern Georgia and extends northward through West Virginia. Poverty, high unemployment and overall economic need characterize this area and make it a place where aid and assistance are always welcome.

For the past 8 years, the Catholic Center has sponsored an outreach trip to Appalachia as a way of assisting people who can use a helping hand. This year's trip will depart on Tuesday morning December 27th and return on Friday morning January 6th with six full work days sandwiched in between.

Applications for participation are now available at the Catholic Center and at the Fox 608A Office. These should be filled out and returned as soon as possible. We are reserving an equal number of slots for men and women.

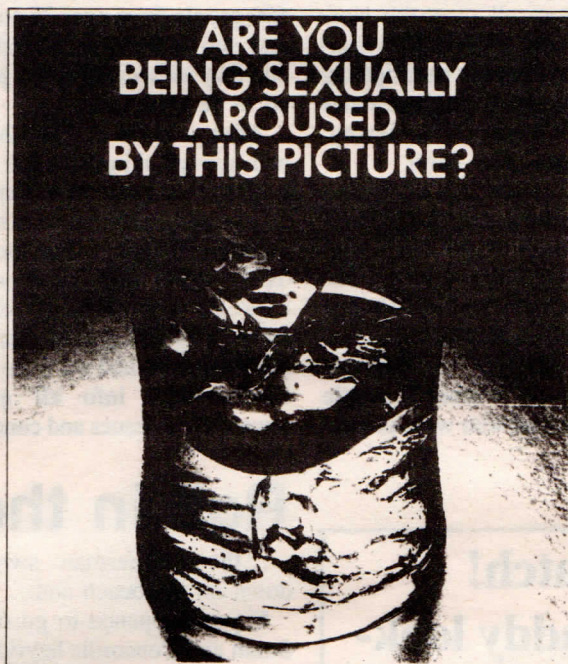

The Annual Appalachian Trip has been a truly extraordinary experience for many students at ULowell over the last 8 years. We are looking forward to an equally enjoyable and rewarding experience this year. If you would like more information about the trip, please do not hesitate to contact us at the Catholic Center. ULowell's Res. Halls Join NAACURH

On Friday, October 28, nine members of the Residence Hall Association (RHA) departed for Kutztown University in beautiful, remote Kutztown, Pennsylvania. You may ask yourself why anyone would travel seven hours to a place called Kutztown. Well, the answer is simple. The University of Lowell's Residence Hall Association has just become a member of NAACURH, the North American Association of College and University Residence Halls. NAACURH is an organization devoted to the improvement and involvement of RHA's from all over the Northeast United States. This conference had colleges participating from all the New England states plus New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Ohio.

Our delegation in it's two cars arrived mid-evening at the Holiday Inn where all the other conferences had already long since arrived and checked in. We had a few problems finding the place. When we arrived, we were astounded by the number of people running around who were involed in this. There were well over 500 people from over 35 colleges and universities in attendance, and they all seemed really psyched to be there.

After a night of handshaking and merrymaking, we got up at 6:30 a.m. to head off to seminars on everything from how to run an effective meeting to hug therapy. There were four sessions and over 45 selections to choose from. Our delegation went it's separate ways and we were bombarded with info all geared toward RHA issues and concerns.

Four seminars and several pages of notes later, we returned exhausted to the hotel where there was an awards banquet and dance afterward. We left early on Sunday morning with new ideas, new friends, and different perspectives. The NAACURH delegation is now in the process of turning our information and ideas into campus-wide events so that everyone can benefit from what we got out of this, so when you see a Kutztown University sweat-shirt on campus, it's not a joke: it's probably a person who went to NAACURH '88.

Roll in the hay

...then Superman swooped down on the beach and...

If you happened to go on the Smith and Concordia hayride last Friday night, you would have had the privy to some terrific jokes told by Dom "huminaa" Serino and many others, including a shriveling horror story about two close friends, Larry and Tyrel. All this while sitting by a bonfire eating homemade donuts and drinking hot cider.

The hour long hayride went under beautiful starry skies through the corn fields and apple orchards of Smolak Farms. Two white swans were also seen swimming around in a pond, while a pure white deer with doglike ears strolled along in the distance.

During the hayride the Concordia Chorus (Casey Zone, Moe Toe, and Carlene String Bean on guitar) sang some wonderful tunes highlighted by a solo of Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer, by Chris Rudolph. Other famous people such as Republican Jim Bush, Ballarina Tony "Sweettoes" Booga and ventriloquist Joe Walsh were also there experiencing the time of their lives.

Thanks goes out to RHA for sponsoring this first annual Smith Concordia hayride, and to all who participated.

Objects thrown from windows

During this semester several serious incidents have occurred in Fox Hall which could have resulted in serious injury and even death. Individuals have been throwing objects from their windows onto the dining hall roof and onto the grounds surrounding Fox. These objects have narrowly missed individuals on the ground or caused damage to the roof.

Please do not throw anything from your windows at any time. If you see anyone involved in such acts notify University Police and/or any member of the Residence Life staff immediately.

Anyone apprehended in such actions will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. There are six possible bases for the imposition of criminal liability with varying degrees of punishment when individuals are identified as having thrown objects from roofs or windows of the residence halls. These fines and punishments range in severity from one hundred ($100.00) to one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) and from one month to as much as ten years imprisonment.

You don't need your parents' money to buy a Macintosh.

It's never been difficult for students to convince their parents of the need for a Macintosh® computer at school.

Persuading them to write the check, however, is another thing altogether.

Which is why Apple created the Student Loan-to-Own Program. An ingenious loan program that makes buying a Macintosh as easy as using one.

Simply pick up an application at the location listed below, or call 800-831-LOAN. All your parents need to do is fill it out, sign it, and send it. If they qualify, they'll receive a check for you in just a few weeks.

There's no collateral. No need to prove financial hardship. No application fee.

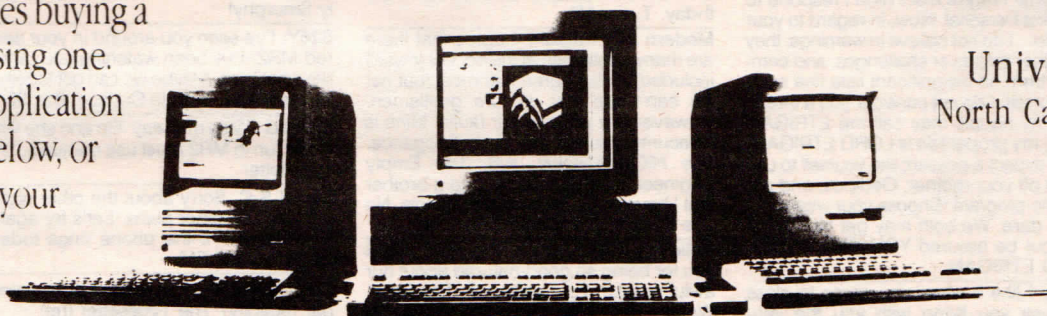

Best of all, the loan payments can be spread over as many as 10 years.

Which gives you and your parents plenty of time to decide just who pays for it all.

Not So Impartial Observer: I'm sure glad that someone is giving us something to work on. Without some serious slams there would be NO personals page. I'm sure that Lisa can handle it...T2.

The T.P.'d Cohort: Thanks for the show of support. Never fear, more original material will appear soon. The Soothsayer.

Fools rush in where angels fear to tread, and into E.E. without looking first. The Soothsayer.

Soothsayer - Amen, brother!! (A former EE, myself) The Typesetter

Modern Day Paladin: You made some excellent points last week. I couldn't have said it better myself! I'm still waiting for a damsel in distress to rescue. Know of any? - The White Knight.

Dear Tired, I'm so sorry that I'm late with my response but better late than never. I wouldn't say that you're looking for nothing, but did you ever think that maybe we are both looking for different things. Let's be friends before we go searching for something or should I say nothing. Misunderstood on 13.

Alisa on 9: You and W have to do me a big favor! (ha-ha)!! You have to take away H.B.'s camera. If not W's chest hairs are gone. Lush.

Carol 15: Happy Birthday!! Have fun but not too much, I think you might want to remember it the next day. The sober driver.

H.B.: So you love watching other people act stupid. That must be the reason you tell me to visit on Thursday nights. I'm not going to visit anymore until you get rid of your camera. Your Friend, Lush.

Carol on 15: Happy 18th Birthday!! Get Trashed!! - The lightweight Lush.

Overlord: "I am that Law".. Bullsh*t!! You are NOTHING! Your allies are NOTHING! WAR has been declared! signed, The Highlander and the Zoo Crew.

Above - Let it be Known that the first official declaration of Personals war was uttered on This day, 10 November 1988. What the hell took so long?!! The Typesetter

Attention All Couch Potatoes: This is it, tonight in the Fox Rat at 7:00, the campus final competition of THE REMOTE CONTROL T.V. trivia game! Come and sing along with Colin, watch videos, take a Snack Break!! Who will win the 19 inch remote control T.V.? -

To Lauren in 1715, are you going to be a good girl and drink all your MILK or are you just gonna sit there and watch it spoil?

The next step in Government: GOP. Permit me to tax your memories for a minute. DEM: Now, why didn't we think of that? - The Punster.

Pooch: Happy Birthday. I'll see you next time I'm in town. - M.J.F. a.k.a. A.P.K.

Oedipus: I regret that I didn't respond to your first Personal. Now, in regard to your second... I do not believe in warnings; they are either threats or challenges, and coming from an insignificant little flea such as yourself, I do not consider you a threat. Only my equals may call me ETRIGAN alone; my proper title is LORD ETRIGAN, and if expect a peasant like yourself to use it. Get off your mother, Oedipus, and get with the program. Choose your weapon... if you dare. We both may get bloody on this, but be assured YOU WILL LOSE. - LORD ETRIGAN.

Lolita: I like it when you come to class because you bring with you the very essence of womanhood, in the way you dress and carry yourself.

The Phantom Heart I am real and waiting. May I be your true love? I want to share your warmth at the fire side, your gentle caress in the night, Phantom Heart I await at your door ready to take that first step into forever. Show me the way into your forever heart. I can wait no longer. Heart of Desire.

What has long tentacles and is very dangerous? Billy the Squid! - The Punster.

The Punster - What about my long tentacle? It's pretty dangerous!!! The Typesetter (retired)

JUST WIMPERING. You backstabbing slime!! Tell us who (or would we say what) you score with. Do you find them growing on the underside of your truck?? We think the reason they don't need masks is because you weren't wearing your glasses! Try putting them on next time- You might be in for a BIG surprise!!! The Pen & The Wench.

Pep'mint - This is my response. How do you like it? And, what was the question? Mr. R

'NAPPER(Yes, You!): Thanx for the hole in the hand, I needed a place to hold my spare pencil leads, anyway. Take it easy on the punch glove, it reminds me of someone very important to me. The razor blades were extra, huh?? Thanx alot! You, young lady, are most assuredly trash bound- Fuzzy Duck.

To The Concordia Ladies of Combat, The guys from Fox thank you very much for your amount of competitiveness and willingness to kick our rumps. We all agree that your finesse and grace coincide with your overwhelming desire to win. May we have as much fun the next time we get together as we did so much Sunday.

Hey Nodout: Thanks for an entertaining ride home from hell. The Mud Queen.

Suds: The Weekend was "just perfect". You did an awesome job. Now it's time for some serious PT business. (not physical therapy) Get psyched. Love, Brewin.

Karen(formerly of 15 Lobby): I periodically think of these numbers; 18,63,9,95,8,92,16,9,92,7,16,52,68,(16,53,6) This riddle is elementary, and the answer is the question... Smitty.

3-C's, Gillie, Hush, Tux and Serch- You are the greatest! Congrats and welcome to KY. Love, Brewin.

To toes: You are the best homecoming queen Lowell could have. We were with you all the way. Love, Your Sisters.

Hell hath no fury like Donna B. scorned!!

Kelly(Miss Remote Control): Having made my peace with T2, I'm looking for somebody to waywith, you might just fit the bill. Being a gentleman I won't comment on your Farmer's Daughter Halloween Costume, but starting next week it's no holds barred. Are you up to the challenge?? - Smitty(The Bacha Pest.)

To Ms. Remote Control: Good luck tonight. It is going to be AWESOME!! See ya there. Love, May-ree.

Cuddlemaster: Who needs a good pick-up line when your foot is bleeding? So what's your name, Jack? Well, can I call you Jack anyway? Do I know you? What are you doing in my bed? What will we do when we run out of strawberries, champagne, ice and pizza? Hey, could you shut the window and lower the radio and give me the dollar you owe me for calling soap scope? Is he gonna knock first? Does he ever get out of bed during the night? Shouldn't we be watching something? Let's look at Brazil! Have a couple of beers, it's only 5:30 in the morning or just pass out and you'll feel much better. Have you ever been written up for taking a shower with someone? Oh God, I'm in love with a fruitcake!(smiley face) P.S. If you plan on keeping my pillow, it cost me $6.50 plus tax. But don't worry, I'll bill you. - Yours -4-eva Spot.

Above - I've never been written up, but I've had video and photos done several times. A word of advice: If you try this, don't EVER use more than one case of jello. I was cleaning for weeks. The Typesetter Pooch: Thanks for letting us watch the fight at your house.

Dan S412: Happy Birthday. Sugar Ray Captain Pooch: Thanks for the football. Hockey is next. This is your year. The TEAM

Cliff: Happy Birthday, we'll go cruisin' for some chickaroones. -Norm

PIA Hmmmm... Wonder why the funny odor left with you and your devastating perfume? And it hasn't come back!! The Clean smelling squad

Dr. V. Happy birthday. -Ray & Egon

?Either one person has one million names or one million people have the same birthday. TypenAP

Modern Day Paladin: I agree that there are many gentlemen at this school (myself included). I also agree that most (but not all) can't see that we are gentlemen. However, we all have our faults. Mine is insecurity; yours is obviously arrogance. The HIGHLANDER. P.S. The Empty Engineer is the closest thing to a brother that I have in this (censored) Hellhole. No one touches the Empty Engineer.

Kelley R. (Who missed the car). Thank you for being so good-natured about our awful mistake. You really are "The Best" We are very sorry. Love, The Concordia Staff

To all who knew me: It has been a long time since I have had the privilege (?) of sitting in front of this sacred terminal. Many things have changed in the past six months here at the paper. And now for the big news: (Everybody sitting down?) The personals page is going to be sponsored by Dominos Pizza. Ready, set, puke! The Typesetter (ret)

The Typesetter (ret): I guess that nothing is sacred anymore. The Typesetter Oedipus, Overlord, Et Al. Since you have instigated a battle with one of our numbers, the rest of us will enter the melee as his allies. To rattle a few sabres, and to advise you as to who you are attacking, let me list off a few names: SCI-FI, Etrigan, Shades, Sanka, Speed Racer, Sleestak, Horhay, Fester, The Dead, FHS, Space Cowboy, Empty Engineer, Highlander, Transplanted Rebel, FX, Schmoo, Princess Bride, Doc, Fortran Savior, and Jumpin' Jim. If you and your allies still want to wage a personals war, then let the games begin! The U.Lowell Zoo Crew. P.S. Let's make it a good fight for entertainment's sake.

Modern Day Paladin: Are you sure you could spase the Occasional kind word? I'm sure that women swoon at your mere presence! It's chauvinistic jerks like you that make women think that men like us don't exist. Thumbs up to Empty Engineer! Linus

TO ANYONE WHO WROTE A NEGATIVE RESPONSE TO ME: You all misunderstood what I was trying to say. None of you know me. Maybe I should not have written anything. What I said was honest and in no way chauvinistic, condescending, or arrogant. I have insecurities, faults, and things about myself that I would like to change — and am the first one to admit it. Signed, Modern Day Paladin. P.S. Hey "friend," how do you know if I "lose all of the good ones?" Again, you don't know me.

Pooch: Happy 21st. Sorry I didn't get a chance to play street hockey with you. I'll write from Switzerland. Middleton.

Melissa Don't scare me anymore by answering the phone yourself, especially when I'm drunk. Me

Amy, I have your lipstick and will ransom it for a fair price. Listen to your answering machine to find out more details. The one who has your keys.

Chris Huh? What? Why? -Johnny

Tracy See what happens when you make drunken 1:30a.m. rest stops at my house? Me

Lauren(1715) Let's go out sometime. I'd give you a call but... "seeing you" in Smith Yo Willison Is that bathroom door open or shut? And what are you reading behind it? Xaviera and Hugh want to know!

Michelle in 109 So. why did you need two sets of handcuffs at the Crescent party? Inquiring Minds want to know!

Above - Actually, she usually uses four sets of handcuffs, but I was using her other two sets. Trust me, you can get damned creative with two sets and a jar of cherries. The Typesetter Hello is Caristophia there? Boom, baboom, baboom... What's that? Oh, it's just my music. Is that what it's called! Your tired apartmentmates.

Above - Boom, baboom, baboom? Sounds more like the rhythm method to me. The Typesetter Psychology 101: You would think that a college professor could tell time, but no! I really hate to tell Waterman, but its my duty as a concerned psych student. Class ends at 3:20 and not 3:30... Sorry Teach! The time miser.

110A: Willison listen up! Some of us need our sleep. Keep it quiet when your in the bathroom. Your're just too loud when you pay your dues. From the folks down in Alabama

The Bogus Bushrats- U.Lowell's elite band of combat specialists are looking for a few good men (or women) to gun down. If you seriously think you can take us, Get a team together and reply in the personals. We're dying to kill you. Just ask Leitch.

To a modern day paladin Take it from someone who knows- your pleasures wear quickly. Real men need not brag about their attributes- maybe that's why you lose all the good ones. A good friend of an empty engineer.

Pooch: Happy birthday from Paul. Your My Best Friend

Hoo Boy! Them Midnite Snaxx really know how to rock! That lead singer is absolutely Smurphy!

526Y: I've seen you around in your sexy red MR2. I've been watching you, and I like what I see. Maybe we can get together for some fun. Write to Curious, Box 5644

Curious - Wise man say: He and she who make fun in MR2 must use manuals. The Typesetter.

Dan:K.S.C. Sorry about the other night, my boy had other plans. Let's try again. Remember: "If the phone rings today, water it." SALEM

Dan - Have you checked the body calendar recently? The Typesetter (ret)

MISTER BLISTER Thank God you made it to hell and back! Now you can put Mario to rest. I know some other toys to take his place. I think maybe, but ah... definitely. POOH

Tyrone: "Get a life and Die." (this is a quote, you idiots)

TYPESETTER- I have no particular qualms with you (yet!). It was with last year's typesetter that I was in major disagreement. I was just addressing the fact that you and he were not the same person. If you insist on continuing this war of words, I will be ready to slam down any feeble reply that your mind can dream up. OVERLORD

Overlord: I can still be contacted. Just write, I'll get the message. By the way, aren't you the one who wimped out last year? The Typesetter (ret)

Overlord - I do not continue wars of words, I end them. (If and when I so desire.) However, if you present a bold enough challenge, I shall be happy to put you in your place. The Typesetter

Basilisk Has my response left you so dumbfounded that you are unable to reply? I thought so. OVERLORD

Karen How about some beds in CT this year instead? Sharon

The Dark Side A new member of the zoo crew has arrived to taunt you and show the force is stronger. I am sibling to Speed Racer and friend to SCI-FI and Lord Etrigan. I am SCHMOO!!!

SCHMOO - Now there's someone to fear. The Typesetter

Oedipus Go find your father! LINUS

Long haired Brian with the "moss green eyes" (Computer Science Major). It's very hard to send you the right signals if you're sending mixed ones yourself. Every weekend I wish I had gotten your No. Write to me in Box 736 and tell me if you're interested. Business Major from College Writing

Modern Day Paladin Don't fool yourself! Women need constantly to hear that they're attractive and they like the feeling of protection that a gentleman provides them. The Empty Engineer and the Highlander are that type of sensitive gentlemen. I'm more than sure that if I were ever threatened, each of them would be there to protect their "little sister"

Yo Master Here's your blinking postcard, now save me, get me out of here, the natives of E318 are abusing me. They've gotten me drunk, shaved a stripe in my hairy eggs, and put ponytails in my hair. This is NO vacation!!! P.S. You have one week... or I will find a new master. ALF

Little Wook: remember all those mushy personals we used to send to each other? Well, I'd like you to know that I still feel the same mushy way. Wookums.

To the boy in S415: "I don't get it" and "I'm not listening to you." Love the Mean Girl

To Randy: The Test Prayer is too long for my typing skills, but I can get one just for you. Gina LOST: 14 karat gold rope bracelet. It has the initial "G" on the clasp. Please return it to room 1715 Fox $50 reward!!

Keith I know you said not to do you any favors, but there is one thing I wanted to say: WOMEN ARE EQUAL!! Guess who?

In response to the Typesetter's comment, Italians are better because they know how to cook, but they don't limit their talents to the kitchen. Skinny Ginny

Skinny Ginny - Prove it to me! Cook me some lasagna and don't limit your talents when we're done! The Typesetter

We wrote this article for those who were unaware who your class representatives are! We hope after this article you will have a good feeling for who we are and know we care and represent YOU!!! If you would ever feel like stopping by and drop in for a visit or arrange a time to talk, feel free. Our office is located inside the North S.I.C. area. Our usual office times are Fridays between 11:00 and 1:00, but we are constantly in and out of the office. Please stop by and say hello!!!

The most serious part of this article. On Thursday, November 17, 1988 we will be having a Senior Class meeting. President Hogan will be addressing the Seniors at 2:30 in Cumnock Hall. President Hogan will discuss pertinent information vital for graduation. Following President Hogans address, Dean Donohoe and the Class Officers will present the events for our senior year and senior week activities. It is very vital that you attend so we understand what you as a class would like to see in your final year!!

Remember, class unity is the key for our senior year! Thursday, November 17, 1988 at 2:30 in Cumnock Hall.

Saranghi maestro. Later, he was trained by his uncle Ustad Fida Hussein Khan and the renowned Padmabhushan Ustad Nisar Hussein Khan.

To his ancestral heritage, Ustad Ghulam Mustafa has added the quality of his own genius and today he is one of the foremost vocalists of India, who is also well known to audiences in many other countries of the world. He has given performances in East Africa in 1964, in England, Switzerland, Holland, Belgium, France, Italy in 1975-76, and in Afghanistan in 1977. He is currently on an extensive-concert tour of U.S.A. and Europe.

Ustad Ghulam Mustafa Khan, with his bright melodious voice cultivated with relentless 'riyaz' brings to his renderings a sense of completeness with imaginative and meticulous execution of the finest details of the musical phrase. Equally striking is his command over the light classical idiom. His Thumri, Dadra, Ghazal, and Bhajan renderings are suffused with sensitivity and feeling.

He has also recorded songs for many award winning Hindi, Marathi, Tamil, and Bengali films, such as, 'Badnam Basti', 'Bhuwan Shome', 'Chand Preeticha', 'Anarkali' (Tamil), 'Drut' (Bengali) etc. His melodious voice has also graced over seventy documentary films.

Shri Nishikant Sonwalker: Nishikant Sonwalker started his Tabla studies at an early age from Pt. Kiran Deshpande in 1967. Later, he studied during 1977-83 with Pt. Sharad Khargaonkar and Ustad Sulaiman Khan of Indore. he received the degree of

Campus Ambassadors

For caring Christian fellowship, Bible study and a good time, join us every Wednesday from 7-9 p.m. in Fox 501 for Campus Ambassador Christian Fellowship. For more information call Art at 667-9529.

Feast before the fast

On Wednesday, November 16, 1988, the Catholic Center will host another one of its regularly scheduled spaghetti suppers (open to the entire university community). On this evening the dessert - did someone say ice cream?? - will be provided by the Protestant Campus Ministry. If you would like to join us for spaghetti and ice cream on November 16th, please call Imogene Stulken at 454-0683, or Pat Davison at 454-0151, so that we may plan accordingly. (The Catholic Center is located at the intersection of the VFW Highway and Mt. Hope Street.)

The following day many ULowell students, faculty, and staff will participate in the Oxfam Fast for a World Harvest.

Protestant Worship Services

Protestant services of worship are held on Sunday evenings at 6:00 p.m. in Fox Hall, Room 301. On Sunday, November 13, 1988, at 6:00 p.m., we will remember Krystallnacht with a brief announcement about the Holocaust and its beginnings. In addition, special petitions will be included in the intercessory prayers.

A date, time, and place to keep in mind: Wednesday, November 16, 1988, 5:30 p.m., at the Catholic Center (corner of Mt. Hope Street and VFW Highway). The ULowell Protestant Ministry will be providing the ice cream as the dessert following the spaghetti supper served by the Catholic Campus Ministry. You are invited to join us as we eat together! If you'd like to come, please call me (454-0683) or Pat Davison (454-0151) so that we can plan accordingly. Hope to see you there! - (The Rev.) Imogene Stulken - Fox 608B (office hours: Mondays 2:00 - 4:00 p.m.)

Men's cross country team qualifies for nationals

By Valerie M. Castora

For the sixth time in eight years, the men's cross country team qualified for the NCAA Division II National Championships. A team qualifies by finishing in the top four at the Division II Qualifier. On Saturday, November 5, the team placed third among the 32 teams represented at the qualifier held at Indiana (PA) University. The 10K, 6.2 mile race was won by Chris Rauber of Edinboro (PA) University with a time of 32:01, only 59 seconds off the course record of 31:02.

Team co-captain, Michael Wright lead the harriers with an exciting 7th place finish. Mike gave the 6th place runner, Chris Monheim, of Shippensburg University, a run for his money. The two battled out the last 200m of the race; Mike had to settle for 7th only a few meters behind Monheim, both finished with times of 32:53.

The other co-captain, Brian Moody, and freshman David Cremin cat-and-dogged each other the entire race. Each one of them took turns shadowing the other. The finish saw a gutsy performance turned in by Brian Moody, running on an injured ankle. Brian was 17th with a time of 33:21. Not far behind was Dave; he is one of the best freshman runners the University has seen--he finished 18th with a time of 33:27.

The dynamic duo of sophomore Eric Desharnais and junior Declan Gilbert had a race similar to Brian and Dave's. The two shadowed each other the entire race. Finishing only 9 places behind 5th year senior Brian Moody, Eric rallied to 26th place with a time of 33:53. This was Eric's third varsity race of the season after missing several meets due to a foot injury. Declan ran one of the best races of this season and was right behind Eric in 27th place with a time of 33:54. The places of the top five runners is equal to the team score for the meet. Having 5 men in the top 30, vaulted ULowell into third place for the meet and earned them a trip to the Nationals.

Rounding out the top seven, were sophomore Suraffel Assefa, and senior Steve Peterson. Suraf-fel was a very respectable 43rd with a time of 34:26, and Steve was 69th with a time of 35:24. These men definitely have to be congratulated--the entire team finished in the top 30 percent of the 211 runners. Coach George Davis commented, "...the guys ran really well, but I know they can do better."

Edinboro University won the meet with 43 points. They had four runners in the top ten (1st, 3rd, 4th, and 5th). Rival Keene State was second with 88 points. Keene's top runner Scott Hatch was 2nd and two of his teammates followed with 9th and 11th place finishes. University of Lowell Chiefs were third only 7 points behind Keene State with 95 points. And in the last qualifying spot went to host Indiana University with 103 points. The alternate team will be Kutztown University and may go to the Nationals as the team at large.

The team will be heading to Jackson, Mississippi on Thursday, November 17 and will be looking for the NCAA Division II Title on Saturday, November 19. Best of luck to all you guys--I know you can do it!!

Soccer team finishes 3-12-1

By Gramps

The end of a long season finished just the way it started for the soccer team. Last Wednesday, the Chiefs suffered an 8-2 loss to New Hampshire College. The teams' performance, however, in the last six games leaves the coach and the players optimistic about next year.

The Chiefs' first win was at home against Division I Northeastern University on October 12. Sophomore Pat Harrington scored 2, including the game winner in Lowell's 3-2 victory. The other goal was the first of the season for senior tri-captain Christos Andrianopolous. The following week, the Chiefs' game was stolen from them when Southeastern Massachusetts University came to town. Though the team had won the game during regulation, the game winning goal was discounted on what can only be called a very bad call. Lowell lost in overtime, 4-3. Goals were scored by sophomore John Roarke, freshman Tony Bresciano, and Pat Harrington, assisted by freshman Jim Young.

The Chiefs travelled to St. Anselm's on October 27 to break a 3 year jinx by winning 1-0. Though the team played stronger in the first half, it was Tony Bresciano's unassisted goal late in the second half that won it. Senior Ron Berton played a great game in net and recorded the shutout. The team played at home the next day, where Assumption College had a 2-0 lead at the half. Lowell came back with four goals in the second half to win their second in a row. Harrington scored first at 54:40, assisted by Bresciano. Harrington returned the favor three minutes later and fed Bresciano who scored to tie the game, then scored the game winner for the second time in two games at 73:54 assisted by sophomore Mike Considine. The other half of the Roarke Brothers, Joe, finished the scoring with an unassisted goal.

The teams' loss to New Hampshire College, first ranked nationally in Division II, came amid the loss of four key players. One was senior tri-captain Ralph Thibodeau, who was not allowed to play in his final game; he was ejected from the previous game for defending himself against a frustrated Assumption player. An appeal to the officials by Coach McGowan was fruitless; so, Ralph cheered the efforts of the team from the sideline. Lowell's 2 goals came in the second half, one from 'Tofa' Andrianopolous, assisted by Bob Kitsos; and the other from freshman Steve DiLeo assisted by Tony Bresciano.

The team's 3-3 finish was proof of what Coach McGowan and the team knew all along: we are better than our record shows. 'We have the talent and now we have a couple of years to really bring it out,' commented Coach McGowan. 'I'm expecting 17 returning players, 9 of which are freshmen and all saw playing time; 4 of them were starters. Of the other 8 returning players, only 1 will be a senior. We'll have a solid core of players and should do better next year and even better the following year.'

The team will lose six players to graduation: Mike Hughes, Peter Kushnieruk, Ron (not Rob) Burton, and tri-captains Al LaFleur, Christos Andrianopolous, and Ralph Thibodeau. If Coach McGowan could give out six MVP awards, they would be awarded to these men. Their intensity, leadership, and team spirit will be greatly missed when the field is relined and the opening whistle blown next fall.

Hockey loses, 5-3

By Lisa St. George

U Lowell's skating Chiefs lost 5-3 Friday night to West Point's ice Army before a crowd of over 1700 at the Multi-Purpose Sports Facility in New York.

Army took over in less than five minutes into the first period when West Point's Rob Tobin shot a goal past Chief's goaltender Mark Richards. Richards made ten saves before the first period ended with the Chiefs trailing by 1.

The Chiefs took the lead in the second period when Scott MacPherson shot U Lowell's first score and Randy LeBrasseur followed up with a second goal eleven seconds later. But Army took control again with two more goals by Brian Cox and Mike Gengler and the period ended with Army leading 3-2.

Less than four minutes into the third period, the Chiefs tied the score with LeBrasseur and Dan Geary assisting Jeff Flaherty to make the goal. Army's Todd Traczyk responded by putting Army back in the lead with a goal ten minutes later, and Tobin's second goal for West Point put the Chiefs behind by 2 where they remained until the end of the game.

Overall, the Chiefs scored 3 goals out of 31 shots with 1 goal scored out of 5 power play conversions. Army scored 5 out of 30 shots with 1 goal out of 9 power play conversions, giving Chiefs goaltender, Mark Richards, 25 game saves.

The Chiefs begin their Hockey League East campaign 7:00 PM Tuesday, November 8, against Boston College at Tully Forum. They then go back on the road with a game Friday, November 11 at Michigan Tech., and Saturday, November 12 at Northern Michigan.
